
His perspective is broad, his outlook far-reaching.
His spirit towers above the storms of life.
His mind is lifted up, above doubt, cynicism and despair.
His vision is high above the fog of petty things.
He looks beyond the obstacles to the promised land of tomorrow.
He sees the rainbows while little men battle with phantom shadows in the valley.
He sees the sun in the east while valley-dwellers burn their tiny lamps in darkness.
His head is in the clouds, but his feet are bedded in the solid rock of Fact and Reason.
He takes the risks; he dares the sky.
He lives with the stars of his ideals, and although he may never grasp them he keeps reaching toward them.

Praise Goes To Employes Of Hospital

The employes of Tacoma General Hospital—and their patients —were praised yesterday by Walter L. Huber, administrator and treasurer of the hospital, at its annual board of trustees meeting.

Noting that the surgical wing construction was begun early in 1962, necessitating use of a temporary entrance on 4th Street, Huber commented:

"The fact that the patient census remained high, and good standards of care were maintained is a tribute to the ability of the employes to adapt readily to changed conditions."

Tacoma General's Safety Plan Receives National Attention

The Hospital Safety Service newsletter for July, issued by the American Hospital Association and the National Safety Council, featured Tacoma General Hospital's safety program.

Here are some of the highlights of the program, as reported by Mrs. Josephine Juberg, personnel director of the hospital:

"Rather than take our people away from their work, we schedule safety and fire films once a month during the coffee-break periods. . . . We choose a short movie and run it continuously during that hour so that the largest number possible may see it . . .

"We had our photographer take a series of pictures posed by our own personnel doing such things as going through a swinging door, picking up glass, handling electrical equipment, reaching for things in high places, lifting heavy objects, etc. They posed doing these things the wrong way and then the right way . . .

"The Safety Newsletter, printed on green paper, comes out monthly right after the Safety Committee meeting. We use this means to inform the employes about the activities of the Safety Committee, their ideas, plans and accomplishments, as well as keeping them up on all safety news . . .

When the department head has eliminated the hazard or arranged for its repair, he completes the form and sends it to the committee chairman to be filed with the original . . .

"When Lt. McGrath was here with his fire control program, he inspired us to teach as many as possible how to deal with fire. Now we devote the last portion of orientation program for all new employes to the demonstration of the use of fire extinguishers, as well as training in the basic carries for the removal of patients."

First Retirement Check given—1968

"When you walk into his office, whether it is to talk about your area of responsibility, to discuss a problem or an emergency situation his quiet calm gives you the feeling of security. His answers will not be "spur of the moment" but carefully and logically made. You leave, knowing everything will be all right. He offers guidance, yet allows you to attempt new policies and procedures. He encourages independent thinking and action when based upon sound principles. If you fail, you are not reluctant to admit it, for he never makes you feel a failure. Your ego is repaired by him and you are given the courage to try again. He is quick to compliment, and very slow to criticize, then, only when absolutely necessary, to help the individual or group to become productive again. With all of his responsibility for all of us, our complaints, our problems, our demands of him, his sense of humor is always there. It is delightful and helps to put things in the proper perspective. He is an extraordinary man. We who work with him are privileged."

Walter Huber commended

Walter L. Huber, executive vice president and administrator of Tacoma General Hospital, has recently been extended a resolution of appreciation by fellow members of the board of directors of Blue Cross, Washington-Alaska Inc., for 12 years of "faithful service, friendship and dedication to the ideals and principles of voluntary prepaid health care."

Huber served two years as Blue Cross vice president; two years as corporate secretary; seven years as a member of the executive committee; two years on the hospital relations committee; two years on the nominating committee and two years on the by-laws committee.

In addition to his interest in providing quality health care to the sick, Huber's interest and concern for the welfare of corporate personnel, caused him to work diligently on the retirement program committee, for which he served as committee secretary for two years. At a later date, Huber served as advisor to the committee in order that corporation employees would have an appropriate retirement program.

The more than 150 hospital executives meeting in Wenatchee today learned from experts some helpful ways to best pave the way for greater productivity.

It was the annual mid-year session of the Washington State Hospital Assn. Most of the program centered around the word "personnel".

"Personnel amounts to the greater cost of operating a hospital and creates most of the hospital's problems," said President Walter L. Huber, in opening the session.

In his talk on "Motivating Employees To Do Their Best," Robert A. Sutermeister told the group "many factors affect employees' job performance and [illegible]" three factors important to increasing the output per man hours.
